

Promising Young Scientist Program

We invite applications for the Promising Young Scientist Program, which is funded by the JSA Initiatives Fund. This program assists young researchers in preparation for faculty interviews, particularly in the crafting of a colloquium or seminar presentation.

Benefits:

- Feedback on application materials (whether accepted or not)
- Assistance in colloquium or seminar preparation
- Feedback on colloquium or seminar from host institution
- Participation in various components of a mock interview
- Feedback on mock interview from host institution

Application materials include a cover letter, CV, Research and Teaching statements and a title and abstract for the proposed colloquium. Please send electronic copies to Juliette Mammei: crowder@jlab.org

For more information, please go to: https://www.jlab.org/user_resources/usergroup/JSA_grant.html

The deadline for application is October 9, 2015.
