JUSTICE WEEK

The Department of Energy (DOE) is hosting its first ever Justice Week September 12-16, 2022. DOE will convene internal and external stakeholders to discuss the work the Department has been doing this past year on issues of equity and justice and understand the path ahead to institutionalize this important work. During Justice Week, Days 3 and 5 will be open to the public!

Join us on Day 3 of Justice Week, September 14, 2022, as we discuss DOE's Equity Action Plan and how we can advance racial equity and provide support for underserved communities. Highlights of the agenda include an Equity Action Plan Townhall, where we want to hear from YOU, an Equity in Procurement Panel, and a panel featuring diverse entrepreneurs in the clean energy space! Register using the QR code or by visiting our website.

Join us and Secretary Granholm for the final day of Justice Week, Day 5, September 16, 2022, as we discuss meaningful community engagement and the implementation of the Justice40 initiative. Day 5 will be featuring a keynote speech from youth climate activist Xiye Bastida! Register using the QR code or by visiting our website.
